G-Spot Enhancement

G-Spot Enhancement is a revolutionary scientific breakthrough that enhances and enlarges the g-Spot. This is a safe, drug-free, fast, painless and effective procedure in the doctor's office.

After the G-Spot is injected with filler product, women have claimed to experience a peak in their sex drive and have noticed a heightened state of arousal.

Who might want the G spot?

Women who...

- ...want to become completely in tune with their G-Spot and its sexual function.
- ...are interested in enhancing sexual arousal/gratification.
- ...have had children and experience a loss in sexual desire.

History about the G-Spot:

In 1950, The International Journal of Sexology published a groundbreaking article by Dr. Ernst Grafenberg (1888-1957). The obstetrician/gynecologist describe an area in the vagina loaded with nerve tissue which, when stimulated, intensified sexual arousal and led to almost instant orgasm. In his honor for this remarkable discovery, the area was referred to as the G-Spot.

Where is the G-Spot?

The G-Spot is an area of sensitive tissue located behind the pubic bone and around the urethra. It can be massaged or stimulated by reaching up about two finger joints distance on the upper surface of the vagina. The area may be located by massaging (with your finger) the wall of the vagina between the pubic bone and the cervix. It is often necessary to press firmly into the area to reach the spot. If already aroused, some women will find that stimulation of this area leads to an intense orgasm.

The procedure will enlarge the G-Spot so it is easier to locate and help the woman gain maximum pleasure.
